Abstract

This report contains socioeconomic data by Transportation Analysis Zone (TAZ) for the Hampton Roads region to be used in the regional Travel Demand Model (TDM) and transportation planning analyses. TAZs are the base geographical unit of analysis in the TDM.

Per Federal regulations, base year socioeconomic data used in the regional TDM cannot be more than ten years old. As such, the Hampton Roads Transportation Planning Organization has updated the socioeconomic data from the previous base year of 2009 to the year 2015.

INTRODUCTION

Socioeconomic (SE) Data is a key input in the regional Travel Demand Model (TDM), a tool used to evaluate the performance of the transportation network in order to determine which combination of improvements will provide the most benefit for the region. The TDM is an important analysis tool in transportation planning as results are used in the Hampton Roads Transportation Planning Organization's (HRTPO) Project Prioritization Tool and the Long-Range Transportation Plan (LRTP).

Per Federal regulations, SE data used in the regional TDM cannot be more than ten years old. As such, the HRTPO has updated the SE data from the previous base year of 2009 to the year 2015.

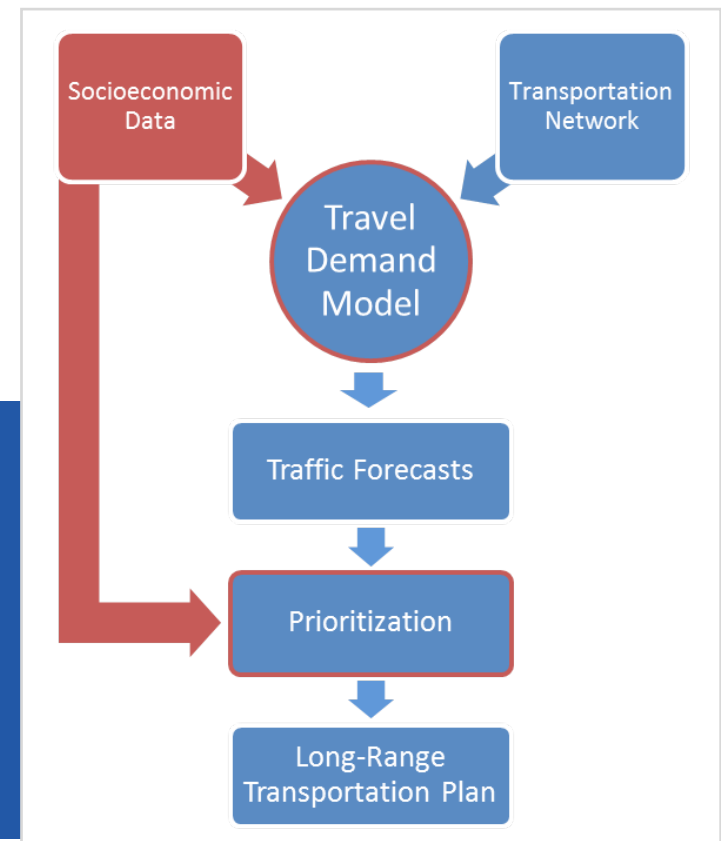

For the purposes of travel demand modeling, SE data is organized into small geographic areas called Transportation Analysis Zones (TAZs), the base geographical unit of analysis for the travel demand model. The Hampton Roads region is comprised of approximately 1,200 TAZs. The structure of TAZs is largely based on established census, physical, and political boundaries, as well as other factors outlined by the Virginia Department of Transportation.

The types of socioeconomic data used by the regional TDM include:

- Population: The total number of individuals that are residing in a given TAZ
- Households: The total number of occupied housing units in a given TAZ
- Vehicles: Number of automobiles that reside in a given TAZ
- Workers: Number of working persons who are residing in a given TAZ
- Total Employment: Number of employed persons in a given TAZ
- Employment Type:
 - Retail: Number of employees working for retail-based businesses
 - Office: Number of employees working for office-based businesses
 - Industrial: Number of employees working for industrial-based businesses
 - Other: Number of employees working for all other types of businesses

Socioeconomic Data is a key input in the regional travel demand model and in the evaluation and prioritization of transportation projects.

Travel Demand Models are used to estimate traffic volumes and patterns in an effort to identify where road improvements are needed within the region.

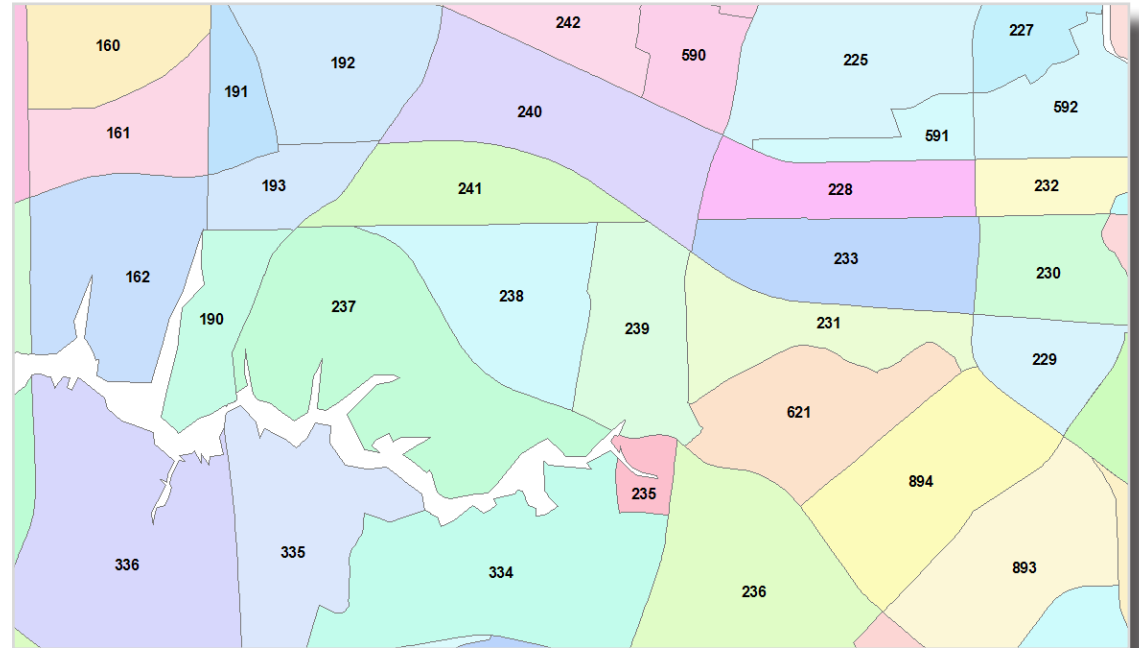

TRANSPORTATION ANALYSIS ZONE (TAZ) BOUNDARY UPDATE

Prior to updating base year SE data to the year 2015, TAZ boundaries were reviewed and updated to ensure boundary consistency with current census boundaries, land use, compatibility with the transportation network, etc. HRTPO staff followed recommendations and guidelines from the Virginia Department of Transportation (VDOT) Travel Demand Modeling Policies and Procedures Manual and analyzed TAZs for potential modification. Localities and other stakeholders were also provided opportunities to review boundaries and make recommendations for TAZ modifications.

Many of the modifications made by the HRTPO to TAZs included realigning boundaries with current census, physical, and/or political boundaries that have evolved or shifted over time. Other modifications included merging multiple TAZs or splitting TAZs. For the purpose of this report, TAZs that were merged or split received new alphanumeric labels. All TAZs will be renumbered at a later date as part of the update to the regional TDM.

Boundary modifications were reviewed by regional stakeholders, including locality staff and VDOT's modeling group, and comments/recommendations were included as appropriate.

VDOT published the Travel Demand Modeling Policies and Procedures Manual in June 2014. This manual establishes guidelines for TAZ Structure based on best practices for delineating TAZs. Examples of these recommendations include:

- TAZs should be contained within the model area
- TAZs should be compatible with the base and future-year highway and transit networks
- TAZs boundaries should avoid concave borders
- TAZs should contain homogeneous land uses
- Population should be between 1,200 – 3,000 (with exceptions)
- Each TAZ should generate less than 15,000 person trips per day
- The area of each TAZ should be between 0.25 – 1.00 sq. miles (with exceptions)

2015 SOCIOECONOMIC DATA BASE YEAR UPDATE

The process of travel demand forecasting uses what we know about the existing world to predict what conditions might be like in the future. The development of the 2015 base year data helps characterize what we know about the existing world. The data for the HRTPO's 2015 SE data update was collected through the use of multiple sources identified below. Please refer to Appendix A for a breakdown of the sources used for each socioeconomic variable.

- U.S. Census Bureau
- Weldon Cooper Center
- Bureau of Economic Analysis (BEA)
- Virginia Employment Commission (VEC)
- ESRI Business Analyst (BA)
- Virginia Department of Education (VDOE)
- Military
- Hampton Roads Planning District Commission (HRPDC)

One of the first steps in updating the 2015 base year data was to identify socioeconomic data control totals for each locality in the Hampton Roads region. Control totals for 2015 were developed using data from the U.S. Census, Weldon Cooper Center, BEA, VEC, and input from the localities.

The next step in this process was to allocate the 2015 locality control totals to each locality's TAZs. Allocating the data into TAZs was performed using VEC data and ESRI's Business Analyst Data as reference sources.

During this effort, localities and other regional stakeholders were involved by assisting in data gathering and in an iterative review process. In an effort to have the most accurate base year data, stakeholder feedback was a crucial component during the entirety of the process.
